

WAR IN KATERRA

By Callum and Ryan

Intro

- We are going to discuss the reason for the war in Katerra, how the war has affected the people in Katerra, what actions should the UN take to help refugees and internally displaced people in Katerra and what actions the UN should take.

The reason for the war in Katerra

- It started by Katerra becoming independent. There are two tribes called the Musi and the Leki. They are fighting over who should rule the country. The government are mostly Musi and they are not letting the Leki run the country with them and because of this there has been a lot of genocide.

How The War Has Affected The people Of Katerra

- The war has given them no crops to grow tea and coffee.
- People driven from there homes
- They are dying of dresses
- 10 lorry loads full of dead bodies working 24 7
- There not fed a lot and not enough fresh drinking water

What acts should the UN take to help refugee camps and the people.

- Oxfam help the people and refugee camps to give clothes to them.
- The UN can help by giving food, water, shelter, medication etc
- The organisation which can help are WHO, UNICEF, FAO UNCEF
- Article 2 states that the refugees are being badly treated. They are often attacked even although they are meant to be protected by the peacekeepers. Disease spreads quickly.

What actions should the UN take

- The UN concentrate on helping the refugees in Zadan and Laguna.
- they should call on a cease fire, air strikes to punish soldier who attack safe areas, peace talks to talk about ending the war and peace keeping solders to keep the peace between the two tribes.

Conclusion

- To the Secretary General of the UN-

We, Callum Boyes and Ryan Gallacher, believe that we must do more to help and protect the refugees and internally displaced people from Katerra.

- The UN must put in many more peacekeepers, say 10,000 and make sure that they are armed and equipped properly so they can respond to all kinds of threats. They can also try and enforce the trade and economic sanctions that the UN have placed on the Katerran government.
- Lastly the UN must bring in a lot more aid for the camps which are clearly too crowded and need a lot of attention. More fresh drinking water is needed to try and deal with the spread of disease and more nurses and doctors are needed to treat people and especially young babies many of whom are very ill.
